CHILDREN'S TELEVISION: WHAT ARE THE BEST—AND WORST—SHOWS?

A blue-ribbon panel offers guidance for parents

First of two parts

By Claire Safran

C.S.

It's Saturday morning. Or Sunday. Do you know what your child is watching?

TV GUIDE asked a panel of experts to watch—and rate—children's programming. Their conclusion: there are more bad guys than good guys trying to catch your child's eye, inviting him or her on a weekend-morning marathon of viewing—27 programs on four different networks, not to mention other local and syndicated programs. Rated on a scale of zero to 10, representing a range from awful to excellent, only three programs came close to flirting with perfection, winning overall ratings as high as eight or nine. Only 11 programs came closer to being worthwhile than to being dreadful, rating above a halfway point of five.

The survey's biggest, most welcome surprise would make a fine bumper sticker for TV executives: Children's programs can be good and funny. The shows that are rated highest by our panel for their entertainment values turn out to be the same ones that are rated highest for their educational and social values. The shows that capture a child's imagination, keep him on the edge of his seat and are best for his funny bone are also the ones that are best for his heart and mind.

That's not a coincidence. Nor is it simply that you have to get a child's attention before you can teach him or her anything. Children tune in to TV for the same reason that grown-ups do, to be entertained. Network executives may claim that they put on the programs that children want to see, the ones that amuse them. Yet almost two-thirds of the weekend-morning programs fail even that simple test. According to our panel, children are bored by emptiness, by noise for noise's sake, by tackiness. The programs that treat children like boobs are the ones that win the booby prize on all counts.

Our panel members (see bbx, page 6) are people who work and/or live with children, and many of them screened the programs with children and took their reactions into account. They are representatives from the fields of child psychiatry, pediatrics, education, child development, communications and that often-ignored profession of parenting.

Among themselves, this distinguished group of men and women could—and often do—argue heatedly about children's television. They represent many different viewpoints. For this survey, we added up their opinions in the form of ratings and then divided the total by the number of voters. The result is an expert consensus that applauds the good and spanks the bad. For parents who are concerned about the quality and/or quantity of TV that their children see, the ratings can serve as a guide to helping young children to become wiser, more selective viewers.

Our panel has rated the network programs that are especially designed for young viewers. Because weekend mornings (to early afternoon) are jampacked with more children's programming than all other days, all other times combined, we are reporting to you on those ratings first. Next week, we'll tell you about the panel's judgments, many of them surprising and unexpected, of the rest of children's television—everything from Big Bird to Walt Disney to Mister Rogers.

Regarding weekend-morning programs, a number of our panelists feel that the best things come between them, in one- to five-minute segments such as ABC's Schoolhouse Rock, CBS's In the News and NBC's Time Out. We didn't ask our panel to rate these, since they are drop-ins rather than programs a child might specifically tune in to. As Aimee Dorr says, "I applaud the fact that each cartoon includes drop-ins on news, health, sports and so on, but these count for so little in the overall scope of the →

How the Experts Rate Saturday and Sunday Mornings

The following chart represents the consensus of the experts. Each program was rated on a scale of zero to 10, or abominable to marvelous, for its entertainment values and then for its educational and social values. The overall rating in the final column includes those ratings but it is not an average of them. The overall rating is a weighting of the first two, with each given the importance that panel members

Comments by Panel Members

"Outclasses all the others." "Handsome format, first-rate dramas. We could use more of these."

"Lively, relevant, well-done news for young people."

"Proof positive that high entertainment, educational and social values can be 'commercial'."

"Good dramatic productions. Done with real respect for kids."

"This is actually funny! Fine bilingualism and biculturalism for English- and Spanish-speaking kids."

"Splendid and informative. A program adults as well as children can enjoy." "Really geared for kids who want to learn."

"Good bilingualism, not-so-good role modeling. Why do adults do such foolish things on this show?"

"Good idea. Nice to see a show with kids and about kids, but it's uneven. And why must everything move so fast?"

"Not much more than a prepubescent Mike Douglas Show." "Interesting topics but sometimes too frenetic and too precious."

"A cut-and-paste magazine format." "A good idea that didn't get enough support."

"The usual public-television exercise—sleepy, slow-moving, well-intentioned, dull."

"Nice try at real-life drama, but preachy and predictable."

"Old cartoons hiding behind a new title. A tremendous amount of destructive behavior."

"The only thing to say is that some kids love this formula of chase, collision and comeuppance."

"Pretty bad. Says nothing to a child about what's happening in this world or out of it."

"Harmless, but worthless."

"Flashy, with little content. Can't understand why kids watch this, but they do."

"Discombobulated activity presented as 'adventure.' Too frightening for many children."

"Old cartoon favorites cut up into unintelligible segments. Surely the kids will notice."

"Monotonous and mindless. Relentless violence-based humor."

"All new? Nothing new! Violent, destructive behavior is rewarded constantly."

"Basically schlock. Quite dreadful, though it does show friendly, warm relations between people more often than other cartoons."

"Terrible! What a waste of any child's time."

"Worthless, pointless, awful."

"It aspires to a low level—and succeeds."

"Boring. A silly takeoff on Charlie's Angels. An excuse to show women in tights."

"No redeeming values."

offerings. They do not redeem what is basically schlock."

Cartoons are the weekend's whipping children. Many of our panelists object to the mayhem. Dorothy Singer, whose work at the Yale TV Center has led to finding the "smoking gun," the first definite and provable connection between TV violence and the aggressive behavior of some children, says, "The cartoons arouse some children to act in an aggressive way. Beyond that, they are formula programs. They are poorly done; the speech pattern is bad; the animation is awful."

Other panelists point the finger at other problems. The Parenting Project of the Boston Women's Health Book Collective worries about "the hideous tempo of most cartoons, the victim-based humor, the use of force to solve problems." Michael B. Rothenberg is concerned about their stereotypes. "By and large, teen-agers are portrayed as competent adults, while adults are portrayed as incompetent. Practically all older people are portrayed as senile. Nearly all scientists are portrayed as mad Eastern Europeans. Blacks are stereotyped and there are few identifiable Asians or Hispanics. The invisible populations in America are still invisible."

It's the content—or lack of it—of cartoons that our experts object to, not the form. Once upon a Classic and 30 Minutes were the highest-rated shows because they entertain and nourish, not because they are live action rather than animation.

Again and again, our panel members point to the high-rated Fat Albert as proof of what cartoons can grow up to be. "It would be hard to fault this program," says George Comstock. "The entertainment is there, along with sophistication of treatment, moral lessons, subtlety and style."

If Fat Albert can do it, why do Plastic Man and Captain Caveman lag behind? "Most cartoon shows are on the same level. Indeed, they aspire to that same, very low level," accuses Gerald Lesser. "Yet cartoons are not the worst menace to attack our society in recent years. They are harmful in that they waste a lot of a child's time. We can do better than that," he insists.

"And why don't we?" (END)

'I'll push a man to see how he'll react'

In 'Ryan's Hope'—and in real life—Nancy Addison tends to come on strong

By John Mariani

When Nancy Addison took the role of lawyer Jill Coleridge Beaulac on ABC's daytime serial Ryan's Hope, she anticipated the usual number of maladies for her character, and she has not been disappointed. Jill has bravely weathered the death of a young son, a messy divorce, the horror of drug addiction, the loss of her fiancé to another woman and other heartbreaks that would turn most normal women into emotional porridge.

That Nancy and her character have survived five years on such a sea of troubles is proof of both women's strong-headedness. Which, in its own ironic way, has led to a quirky problem →

Nancy Addison had not anticipated. "I get very little mail from men," says the beautiful brown-haired, green-eyed actress, "while the seductive sirens, the conniving, man-chasing female characters on the show get tons of letters from male viewers. I think men see Jill as too strong for them, too determined. Usually my character is pretty much in control of her men, even when she's in trouble, and men are afraid of Jill."

When a woman is as attractive as Nancy Addison, a man may very well be apprehensive about approaching her. "Even in high school, boys didn't ask me out much because I was so shy, and they took that to mean I was snobby," she says, shaking her head.

Much of her own strength of character came from her mother, who worked as a designer of furs with her businessman father. Born in New York City and raised in New Jersey, Nancy grew up without ever watching soap operas on television. "Now that I work so hard during the day," she says, "I still don't get to see them. The only time I see myself is if I get hold of a tape machine."

After pursuing a liberal arts education at Fisher Junior College in Boston and New York University, Nancy performed on the stage in dinner-theater, stock and off-Broadway productions, and studied with both Stella Adler and Sandy Meisner before taking on the role of Kit Vesti in the soap opera The Guiding Light for two years. After that, she joined Ryan's Hope, where she was nominated for an Emmy in 1976.

But then, instead of identifying with soap-opera heroines, Nancy felt a stronger attraction to Vivien Leigh as Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone with the Wind," a film she has seen 15 times at last count. "I love Scarlett," says Nancy, "because she's tough too, a con artist, and knows what she wants. But I really admire Vivien Leigh the actress, who was a little crazy and went through a lot. The great thing about that movie is that Scarlett and Rhett Butler are mirror images of each other. They're both headstrong and complex, with all kinds of shadings.

"It's very sexy when he carries her up those stairs and she's kicking. On Ryan's Hope, my character has been pretty much in control of her men, even when she's in trouble. In my own life I'll push a man to see how he'll react, because I want a man who is stronger than I am—or as strong."

Nancy, who admits to being in her late 20s, was once married to an actor ("A Southerner at that," she laughs), but after a divorce, she became involved in the early-'70s women's movement. "I was heavily into feminism then," she says, "and I guess I was a little radical in my feelings toward men—which must have put them off. But I've mellowed and now I try to see both sides of the issue. I don't just want women to change and grow; I want women and men to grow together and to nurture each other, which is not easy. You have to break down the barriers first."

One of the barriers Nancy herself broke down effectively was on one of those nights when she found herself alone at a disco in New York. "I told myself, if I feel I want to go out alone, that's my business," she explains, "and when I got there, everybody was with somebody else. Except one guy sitting alone. He looked strong, serious, proud and intriguing. So I just went up to him and asked him to dance. We've been together now for three years."

When Nancy auditioned for Ryan's Hope after a stint on The Guiding Light, she was originally up for the role of Jill's sister, the doctor. "But I gave such a strong, determined reading," she says, "that they offered me the role of the lawyer, which was originally meant for an older woman. My character has changed over the years, of course, and in the future I want her to be much more vulnerable and →

TURKEY AND STUFFING WITHOUT GUILT

One evening, as Polly Morgen sat nibbling on a carrot, a vision appeared: juicy turkey drenched in velvety gravy over a mountain of stuffing.

Next thing Polly knew, she

was tearing the tin foil off congealed corned beef and marshmallowed yams. And you know what? Ms. Morgen doesn't even like yams.

Fad diets are so boring, they drive you to cheating. Guilt sets in. You feel so bad, you abandon the diet completely. Till the next time.

Weight Watchers Frozen Meals can help break this self-defeating pattern. All of our 28 dishes are specially made for a sensible weight loss program. And all of them have an extra something you never dreamed you could eat without feeling guilty.

Like the thick, brown mushroom gravy on our beefsteak. Sublime lobster sauce or lemony bread crumbs on our fish. Piquant soy sauce spiked with garlic on our chicken livers and onions. Velvety gravy and stuffing with our turkey. There's no tricks. No MSG. We simply start off with the finest well-trimmed meat and fish and serve them in a sensible portion.

Then we enhance them with rich-tasting yet ingredient-conscious sauces.

So throw out your corned beef, Polly! Wash those yams down the drain!

You've got Weight Watchers Meals on your side now. And after a few weeks on your program you might just see that side getting smaller.

not so hard-nosed."

The mellowing of Nancy's personality has guided her perception of her character. "This is the best part of my life right now!" she exclaims. "I've got a wonderful acting job, I just bought a country house in Pennsylvania that I'm fixing up, I have a terrific relationship with a man, although right now I don't think I want to get married or have children, and I've even started up my own business."

Last year, friends she'd met in her feminist workshop produced some ornamental hair decorations that included several unique, bejeweled hair pins. With an investment of $20 in materials, Nancy and the three other women began producing them for sale around New York. "We tried to get them into Bloomingdale's for months," says Nancy, "and we were persistent. When they finally agreed to see us, they flipped and we had enough orders for three months. We didn't even know how to write an invoice, and I was up till 6 some mornings, sewing sequins onto these ornaments. Now we've got booths in Bloomingdale's, Saks Fifth Avenue and Henri Bendel's, and I'm not staying up till 6 any more. But, I still promote the product—called Kirk's Folly—by appearing in the store and greeting customers."

Sometimes men will wander over to the booth to find out exactly what it is that the beautiful brunette who is vaguely familiar-looking is wearing and selling. "One day this man came over, and I was bending over. When I stood up with the ornament in my hair, he burst out laughing. Well, I went over to him and said right in his face, 'Listen, don't you dare insult me or my work! You are a man of utter insensitivity, and I just can't stand that.' The man backed away like I was this crazy lady, but I just smiled because I stood my ground. It made me feel terrific for the rest of the day." END

Don't go on a diet without Femiron

Can you lose weight on a "crash" diet? Crash diets are never a good idea. Because the faster you take off weight, the faster you usually put it back on.

What kind of diet is best for you? The best thing to do is determine how much weight you want to lose . . . and how fast. Then diet accordingly. If you cut calories gradually, you'll avoid that starved feeling.

If you're going to cut calories, be smart about it. You may be cutting out some very important foods from your diet. (And that can be downright unhealthy.)

So take Femiron. Just one Femiron Multi-Vitamin and Iron tablet every morning is the quickest, most effective way of making sure you get all the iron and important vitamins your body needs. If you're on a diet, or thinking about going on one, be sure to take Femiron.

"DO YOU PIVOT EVERY MORNING?"

Now the good ol' boys wear designer jeans

Thanks to TV, stock-car racers no longer risk their necks for nickels

By Melvin Durslag

On the morning of each race in the premier division of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, known at the hoist as NASCAR, a minister from Ashboro, N.C., gathers in the track garage with the entrants—who, heads lowered, join reverently in services

Bidding the parson good day, the principals move to the next task, which is to lead-foot their mounts in a roaring stampede apt to put one another into the wall, into the infield or into traction.

Here and there, it even inspires knuckles. Leaving services one day last year, Donnie Allison and Cale Yarborough, part of that neighborly order called the Good Ol' Boys, found themselves creating traffic for each other. Spinning into the infield, the two were soon dispensing punches. Since both drove Oldsmobiles, the fight seemed distressingly intramural. Happily, Donnie's brother Bobby, driving a Ford, joined in, giving the battle a broader look

The growth of stock-car racing in America has been notable, particularly in the premier division, which represents the big leagues of this form of commerce. Fourteen races were shown on national television last year, some as weekend segments running 30 minutes to an hour, and others in their entirety, lasting as long as three hours.

Begun mainly as a regional sport in the Southeast, the stocks remain biggest in that sector, but have gained in popularity elsewhere, too. Under the point-keeping umbrella of the Winston Cup, the drivers compete in 31 races over the season for prize money totaling $6 million. Last year's leader, Richard Petty, snatched $531,292, almost $70,000 more than the champion of professional golf, Tom Watson.

Of course, Watson did nothing more dangerous than play out of tall grass, but, as Petty reminds us, stock-car drivers used to risk their necks for nickels

"Originally," says Richard, embarked on his 22nd year as a stock jockey, "races were organized by guys at the service station who would sponsor a car and do the maintenance themselves. It was a sort of mechanics' contest, with little at stake for the drivers." →

Stock cars at that time were genuinely stock, bearing the equipment they rolled off the assembly line with. Today little is stock, except the body.

But the cosmetic appearance is still enough to attract that species of viewer who can identify with the brand of machine on which he is making payments. The Charlotte Motor Speedway, in Harrisburg, N.C., names its grandstand sections after cars. And the former general manager there, Richard Howard, used to whip the crowd into the racing spirit by inquiring over the loudspeaker, "How many you folks wanna see a Dodge win?"

Dodge fans would rise and cheer. Howard would then ask, "And who is rootin' for Chevys?" Naming other makes, he would soon have everyone on his feet, shouting encouragement to the Detroit beauty he favored.

"Americans have a strange passion for their automobiles," says Ken Squier, motor commentator for CBS, which televises some of the Winston Cup races. "Certain people even give their car a personal name, as they would a cat.

"But the type of person now patronizing stock cars has changed," continues Squier. "They used to attract a rougher set. Today, it's more a family affair. I think this helps explain why attendance is growing. The Winston races alone last year hit a record million and a half."

Overall, automobile racing, according to the Daily Racing Form's 1979 survey on sports attendance, drew 47,700,000 spectators last year, proving it takes all kinds. But many of those included in that figure were attending such cultural phenomena as drag races, hot-rod races, road races, off-road races and midget races—midget referring to the cars, not the drivers.

"I guess you might say that Indianapolis-type cars form the glamour segment of auto racing," explains Squier. "Formula-one cars [open-cockpit road racers] can be exciting. But stocks strike home with fans for two reasons, apart from personal identification. First, the stocks are more durable in a race. If 40 start, 20 to 25 will finish. If 33 start in Indy-type racing, maybe 7 to 10 will finish. Formula-ones drop out fastest of all."

The second appealing thing about stocks is the intimacy of their races.

"Since stock cars have fenders," says Squier, "the drivers can run wheel-to-wheel with no grave danger. If you try that with open-wheel cars—and the wheels touch—it's goodbye car and driver. TV viewers like stocks because the camera is able to bring them all the intimidation and interplay taking place on the track where the cars often are running close to each other, bumping and crowding."

It is Richard Petty's judgment that a large percentage of stock-car followers are as intrigued by the work of the crews as by the race itself. Petty's crew of 10 is so specialized that he even has a man to catch the gas overflow. He has one to hand him a drink. And another's assignment is to carry tires. In Level Cross, N.C., Petty's home, this specialist, no doubt, is known as the tire schlepper.

Anyone who must call for an appointment for a lube, oil and filter, drop off the car at 9 and pick it up at 4, can't help but look admiringly at a crew that can just about rebuild an automobile in a matter of seconds.

Are the Good Ol' Boys in stocks today the same as those rolling out of Talladega, Darlington, Martinsville and Level Cross in earlier years?

"The only difference I can see," says Alexis Leras, veteran news-bureau director for NASCAR, "is that the Good Ol' Boys of today are dressed in Calvin Klein jeans. But that isn't because their characters have changed. It's more because their bankrolls have changed."

Stock-car fans, however, aren't yet identifying with a driver's pants. END

We're still 'renting our slaves'

A new documentary reveals that the plight of migrant farm workers hasn't changed much in 20 years

By Peter Funt

It has been 20 years since Edward R. Murrow roused the Nation's conscience over the plight of migrant farm workers with his classic CBS documentary "Harvest of Shame." In a report from a dusty field in Belle Glade, Fla., in 1960, Murrow's mastery of the documentary form was at its emotion-filled best as he quoted a farmer: "We used to own our slaves; now we just rent them."

Ten years later, Chet Huntley and a documentary crew from NBC refocused television's energies on the same conditions in a broadcast called "Migrant—An NBC White Paper." From his vantage point in Belle Glade, Huntley noted that there had been few meaningful reforms to help the migrants in the decade since "Harvest of Shame." He closed his 1970 broadcast by saying: "We hope → that no one will need to make a film about migrants 10 years from now."

But this year such a film has been made. Reporter Chris Wallace and a fresh team of investigators from NBC News have revisited Belle Glade and again examined the lives of the migrants whom Murrow called "the forgotten people: the underprotected, the undereducated, the underclothed, the underfed." Not surprisingly, the new report—which is scheduled Aug. 15—reveals that the 1980 harvest is still not worthy of America's pride.

Viewers who watch the latest documentary about migrants might find themselves questioning the value of such programs. Despite the documentarians' concern about the migrants, can television take credit for any improvement in their condition? Is it true, as some claim, that television is an effective medium for reinforcing people's beliefs but is incapable of changing them? And are low-rated, one-hour documentaries the best vehicles for conveying important information to the mass TV audience? Or have the fast-paced magazine shows such as 60 Minutes made the Murrow-style documentary a video dinosaur?

The record is not clear on how much "Harvest of Shame" accomplished. After the program was telecast on Nov. 25, 1960, producer David Lowe told Time magazine: "We felt that by scheduling the program the day after Thanksgiving, we could stress the fact that much of the food cooked for Thanksgiving throughout the country was picked by migratory workers. We hoped that the pictures of how these people live and work would shock . . . the Nation."

As it turned out, one of the more "shocking" responses to the CBS broadcast came from its sponsor, Philip Morris Inc. After initially supporting the program, Philip Morris changed its position, following the telecast, and sent representatives across the country apologizing for what Murrow had said. Murrow's dramatic flair may have unnerved some of the program's sympathizers, making "Harvest of Shame" more of a spectacle than a serious instrument for change.

Fred Friendly, the executive producer of "Harvest of Shame" and later president of CBS News, believes the 1960 broadcast accomplished as much as could have been expected. "I don't think journalists ought to have as their first motivation to bring about change," Friendly said. "I'm not a crusader. The programs Ed and I did were designed to report the facts, analyze the facts, and let the people decide."

But Palmer Williams, a member of Friendly's documentary team and now managing editor of 60 Minutes, recalls: "One of the tragedies of 'Harvest of Shame' was that it had little effect on the legislative process." Indeed, when Chet Huntley re-examined the migrant-labor situation in 1970, he concluded: "To say that no programs have been instituted to help the migrants [since Murrow's broadcast] would be misleading. But it is our observation that recent reforms have had little substantial effect on the conditions of their lives."

Huntley's broadcast, "Migrant," stirred up a lot of controversy—some of it even before the program was broadcast. The Coca-Cola Company's orange-juice division, cited as one of the contributors to the marginal conditions under which migrants lived and labored in Florida, previewed the program and exerted what producer Martin Carr termed "enormous pressure" for changes in the script. A few hours before "Migrant" was telecast, NBC News agreed to make two changes to temper its criticism of Coca-Cola. But then, just nine days after the broadcast, a headline in The New York Times proclaimed: "Coca-Cola Denies Link to Farm Ills." Although company officials insisted that plans to improve conditions had been underway for months, there was little doubt that the NBC docu- → mentary spurred quick action. Today, Coca-Cola is credited with bringing about the most significant improvements for migrants in Florida, and company officials eagerly cooperated with NBC this time around.

Daniel O'Connor, director of special projects for NBC News, supervised production of both the 1970 and 1980 reports on migrants. He recalls that after Chet Huntley's broadcast, many viewers sent NBC unsolicited contributions to help the farm workers; and Vice President Walter Mondale, then chairman of the Senate's migratory-labor subcommittee, was so moved by the program that he visited NBC's offices to talk with the producer about the problems of migratory workers.

"We are quite sure that the 1970 broadcast had an effect," O'Connor said recently. "Unfortunately, with only a few exceptions—such as Coca-Cola's citrus operations—the conditions in Florida remain just about the same. So we ask ourselves, 'Is it worth putting these shows on? Is there any reason for us to spend all this money?' The answers, of course, are 'yes.' But it's up to the people and leaders in Washington to make changes."

NBC's latest program on migrants will be seen by roughly one-third the audience for CBS's 60 Minutes. Could magazine programs do a better job of informing the public about such subjects? O'Connor thinks not. "I believe the documentary form is more effective," he says. "We reach people who can do things—people on higher income levels, those with higher education. Besides, you can't examine a subject like this in a 10- or 15-minute segment. We spend more time filming, we have larger budgets—we have a definite advantage over 60 Minutes, 20/20 or Prime Time Saturday."

Palmer Williams believes the impact of a good documentary is that "it brings a variety of sometimes unfamiliar subjects to the attention of people. 'Harvest of Shame' was the public's first real look at the plight of the migrant worker." But as for its overall effectiveness: "I tend to believe that any improvement for migrants came about because of a natural process of evolution. I'm not sure how effective the documentary itself really was."

A similar view comes from Marc Grossman, an aide to Cesar Chavez of the United Farm Workers. "By themselves, documentaries don't do much," he says. "But the two documentaries on migrant workers helped expose people to the conditions that exist on the farms. We took advantage of the sympathy that was generated, and channeled it into constructive programs."

If there is one point on which everyone seems to agree, it is that television should not abandon a topic simply because it's already been done. Fred Friendly, now a consultant to the Ford Foundation, says he admires NBC for following up "Harvest of Shame" not once but twice. Friendly himself is haunted by the decision he made while president of CBS News not to rerun the documentary on migrants "because there was so much correspondence after that show. The paper work kept us busy for months. It is a blight on my record that I decided not to repeat 'Harvest of Shame'." (CBS did rerun the program after Murrow had died, and Friendly had left the company.)

Twenty years ago, Ed Murrow told those who viewed "Harvest of Shame": "Only an enlightened, aroused and perhaps angered public opinion can do anything about the migrants." Ten years later, Chet Huntley observed during "Migrant": "It should be the responsibility of all Americans to see that no American is deprived of the quality of life that the rest of us take for granted."

"Journalism generally has no memory," says Fred Friendly. "One great documentary on a subject every 10 years is hardly enough." END

Reruns Loom for September as Actors' Strike Continues

Hollywood—If the actors' strike against the networks and the major TV and film companies drags on, the start of the fall season could be pushed back, leaving viewers with little more to watch in September than reruns of existing series and replays of miniseries and made-for-television movies.

The only prime-time entertainment shows unaffected by the strike of the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists are NBC's Real People, Speak Up America and Games People Play; ABC's That's Incredible! and Those Amazing Animals; and CBS's The Tim Conway Show. These shows operate under a different contract, as do the network newsmagazines, CBS's 60 Minutes, ABC's 20/20 and NBC's Prime Time Friday.

While the networks have many opening series episodes finished and ready to use, network executives predict they will not telecast them because they would be scattered among reruns and lose their impact. The same is true of new made-for-television movies and such events as NBC's Shogun, the 12-hour miniseries that was supposed to kick off that network's new season. These shows, which are used partly to promote upcoming series, would be much less valuable if broadcast during a glut of old programs.

"If the SAG-AFTRA strike is settled in a couple of weeks," said CBS's programming chief, Bud Grant, "there will be very little effect on the new schedule. But if we have a long summer, we will have to consider using repeats of existing series." Sy Amlen, the ABC vice president in charge of scheduling, said that if the work stoppage lasts more than a month his network will be forced to make changes in the fall schedule, now set to open in mid-September. "We will have to go to our inventory: miniseries, movies, pilots and reruns," Amlen said.

The bargaining is complicated by upcoming negotiations with other Hollywood trade unions, especially the Writers Guild and the Directors Guild. If the producers give in to the demands of the actors, it could open the door to tougher negotiations with the directors and writers. —Frank Swertlow

New York—When Laverne and Shirley switch off the lights as they leave their TV apartment this fall, they will be making a specific if subtle point: don't waste electricity. As the new season unfolds, such messages will probably appear on various weekly series. Producers will be trying to help viewers understand the energy problem.

President Jimmy Carter has advocated spreading the word about energy conservation on prime-time entertainment shows. Last September he met with the heads of the three commercial networks to discuss how it could be done. The networks claim that they have taken no official action to implement the President's proposal. Says CBS spokesman Gene Mater, "We don't believe we should use entertainment programming to transmit messages of any sort."

But the messages are being sent

As We See It

☐ It was the Dashiell Hammett-Mickey Spillane school of detective story that gave us the private eye who took fearful beatings and, shortly thereafter, rose jauntily from the floor, attending to his glossy locks with a pocket comb, and revealing no more bodily harm than an attractive scratch over one cheekbone. At least, in justice to the authors, that was how he behaved in the early Hollywood interpretations of their works.

Television picked up the tradition of the dreadful drubbing without skipping a blow, and over the years, we have seen the Peter Gunns, the Cannons, the Barettas and the Rockfords take their lumps with insouciance—like Humphrey Bogart before them.

☐ As parents, some of us have been troubled about the effect of this make-believe on the impressionable minds of our younger progeny. "Kids," we have wanted to tell them, or we have told them, "this is a fairy tale. Don't take it the least bit seriously. The human body is fragile. A beating can be a terrible thing. It can even kill. Remember that, in your dealings with your classmates."

And now, as if to reinforce the point, comes James Garner himself, whose Rockford files bulge with the beatings he has taken. But, after each battering, no matter how intense, he has emerged sound, healthy, unscathed—the same charming, smiling Jim.

☐ Enter: Real Life. A minor traffic accident in Coldwater Canyon and a violent encounter with a real-life motorist. The 51-year-old Garner is thoroughly beaten up and lands in the hospital.

Five months later, interviewed on TV, he tells Barbara Walters: "Right now I'm getting over a concussion and a few stitches in the head and I've got a ruptured vertebra . . . a disintegrating disc in the neck and three in the lower back. I've broken three or four ribs, most knuckles, both kneecaps . . ."

☐ Does art imitate nature? Obviously not when it comes to the results of physical violence.

The Screening Room

Previews of noteworthy series and specials by TV GUIDE programming editors
For movie choices, see 'This Week's Movies,' by Judith Crist, in this section

There's a first-run report on the plight of migrant agricultural workers and there are a number of notable reruns on the bill this week. But, obviously, the main event is the Democratic National Convention, which is scheduled to run from Monday through Thursday at New York's Madison Square Garden. Network coverage of the Democratic get-together is summarized in the Convention Guide; the daily agendas are in the Close-ups.

SUNDAY. On a rerun of Archie Bunker's Place (8 CBS), a birthday party for Veronica (Anne Meara) gets an unexpected guest: Veronica's ex-husband (played by Meara's real-life spouse Jerry Stiller). And Veronica shows how glad she is to see him in a slapstick kitchen scene that has Archie's cook pummeling her ex with everything that's not fastened down—including the cake.

MONDAY. "Hollywood," William Faulkner reportedly said, "is the only place on Earth where you can get stabbed in the back while climbing a ladder." Faulkner's trip down the ladder as a screenwriter "in servitude" to Warner Bros. during the 1930s is the most fascinating segment in a repeat of William Faulkner: A Life on Paper (8 PBS), an anecdotal two-hour documentary that recalls Faulkner's troubled marriage, his bouts with the blues and the bottle—and the author's belated triumph as the 1949 Nobel prize winner for literature.

WEDNESDAY. PBS's Great Performances has two fine repeats this week. Tonight at 8, "The Juilliard String Quartet Plays Beethoven" with all the gusto of a symphony orchestra. In fact, the ensemble does have an extra member: the camera, which reflects the tempo of the music as it moves among the musicians. Friday evening at 10, the series showcases the artistry of choreographer George Balanchine, as Mikhail Baryshnikov dances with the New York City Ballet in Balanchine's 1929 classic "The Prodigal Son" and Peter Martins and Suzanne Farrell are featured in the elegant pas de deux from 1976's "Chaconne."

FRIDAY. In a memorable 1960 CBS documentary entitled "Harvest of Shame," Edward R. Murrow exposed the disgrace—and despair—of America's migrant farm laborers; "the underprotected, the undereducated, the underclothed, the underfed," Murrow called them. Ten years later, in an equally powerful report, NBC newsman Chet Huntley reexamined the migrants' lot—and found that little had changed. Has it yet? Not nearly enough, according to "The Migrants, 1980," an NBC Reports investigation (10 P.M.) filmed in Florida. Reporter Chris Wallace says that the migrants "remain at the lowest income level of any group" in the Nation; that there are widespread violations of state child-labor laws; and that many migrant families continue to live in substandard housing.

In some areas network shows may not be seen on the days and at the times indicated. Times are Eastern.

ON MEDIA MINISTRY

I compliment you on Dr. William Fore's article "There Is No Such Thing as a TV Pastor" [July 19]. I agree that the "electronic church" can never take the place of the real community of people of God meeting together in their parish church. Listeners [of broadcast evangelists] should go to their own local churches to take more active parts. Dr. Fore expresses these ideas very well

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph Przudzik
Phoenix, Ariz

I am surprised that Dr. Fore has such tunnel vision. Church fellowship is not the essence of religion. God and His Word are the essence of religion. It doesn't matter how you get it, but that you get it and understand it and apply it. [Also], material success, power, winning, security and wealth are all things that the Lord wants us to have. Why should we lack anything we want? As long as one remembers the source (God) and is thankful to Him for these things, these blessings will continue to pour in. Television ministries are changing lives.

Nishelle A. Bowers
Inglewood, Cal.

I wonder how Christ, a street-corner preacher who never took up a collection, would react to all the money taken in in His name. If He had a fit over pigeon peddlers and loan sharks doing business in a temple, imagine what would happen if He came back and discovered these big-time operators making fortunes out of religion.

Jack Rayford
Pinole, Cal

I would much rather see persons like Oral Roberts and Pat Robertson receive "earthly rewards" for preaching the Gospel and good Christian values than see others make millions preaching sex and violence.

James Champion
Corpus Christi, Texas

William F. Fore offers up the latest serving of sour grapes on behalf of establishment Christianity when confronted by the "electronic church." True enough that the tube can't give us human warmth as can a local church. But the church exists in the first place to give us the Gospel. When it doesn't do that, human contact is no replacement

The Rev. Alan E. Rosenau

CONVENTION COMMENTS

[All three networks covered] the Republican convention between 8-11 P.M., Monday through Thursday. Where does this leave the viewer who does not wish to sit through 12 hours of uninterrupted, meaningless political double talk and unfulfilled promises? I'm all for giving the public something of substance, but there should be moderation in all things—especially TV. So come on, networks—give us a break. Better still, give us a choice!

Robert E. Clark
Urbana, Ohio

I was looking forward to watching the Republican convention. What a disappointment! I wanted to see and hear the speakers, but unfortunately we were at the mercy of all the anchormen on all three networks. They were more interested in giving their opinions and those of their co-workers.

M.L. Crane
New Orleans

Wednesday night was most instructive to the inner workings of TV journalism. The wild speculation over the possible Vice Presidential nomination of Gerald Ford went from "maybe" to "possible" to "probable" to "most assuredly," before the bubble broke and the newsmen wound up with egg on their faces. One was reminded of greedy Hollywood gossip columnists rather than journalistic professionals.

This Week's Movies By Judith Crist

Saturday, CBS	No Other Love
Sunday, ABC	The Users
Sunday, NBC	The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox

Beyond a couple of weekend repeats, it's a movie-famine week on the network level with the Democratic National Convention pre-empting four prime-time movie spots and football taking over the fifth.

The one top-quality offering is a repeat of No Other Love, one of the best made-for-television movies of 1979. In concept it is another TV social drama wherein two young handicapped people find happiness; in execution it is an engrossing and deeply affecting story, based on a true incident, of two marginally retarded people who help each other to find a viable life. And it is given brilliance by remarkably subtle and sustained performances by Richard Thomas and Julie Kavner. The Edwin Francis Kaplan teleplay avoids both sensation and polemic in transmitting an understanding of the mentally retarded in powerful personal terms. Under Richard Pearce's direction this film demonstrates the quality potential of television movies.

In contrast, the repeat of 1978's The Users illustrates the trash nadir of the form. Based by Robert J. Shaw on Joyce Haber's nasty novel, this lame-brained melodrama offers us the kind of "inside Hollywood" sensationalism that even the scruffier weeklies have outgrown. Jaclyn Smith's on hand as a prostitute who marries a fading star, Tony Curtis, and climbs up the sex ladder to revive his career, winding up as a "power broker," no less. Trouble is that whenever things get stressful Curtis turns homosexual, but that doesn't faze anyone in the brothel that is Hollywood. Names—of restaurants, movie stars and shops—are dropped by the dozen and it all adds up to the sleaziest chic of the year.

Opt instead for the repeat of Melvin Frank's 1976 The Duchess and the Dirtwater Fox, an old-fashioned mindless comedy with shticks and bits bound together by an erratic story and given gloss and moments of sheer delight by two talented stars. In this period Western, Goldie Hawn, as the Duchess, is a raunchy music-hall performer in search of a better position in life, and George Segal is the inept and greedy gambler known as the Fox. Between them, they not only provide a couple of truly hilarious sequences but also manage to tide us over some derivative gags and plot slumps.

For its Thursday late movie—in case President Carter's acceptance speech is a brief one—CBS has on hand the premiere of 1977's Grand Jury, which never had theatrical release. Written, produced and directed by Christopher Cain, it offers us Bruce Davison and Sharon Thomas as "an average" couple who, according to information provided by CBS, "fight to survive a place of their own in today's society [sic]." Their "fight" leads to friendship with Leslie Nielsen, who gets them involved with organized crime. The movie, we're told, "reflects the tragedy of the times through the life of Bobby and Jenny Allen." It does so for about two hours and 25 minutes.

In some areas network movies may not be seen on the days indicated.

Democratic Convention Guide

"When Democrats assemble a firing squad they always gather in a circle. But when we get together, watch out."
—Arizona representative Morris Udall at the 1976 convention in New York City

The Democrats return to New York for their 38th National Convention, which is scheduled to run from Monday through Thursday.

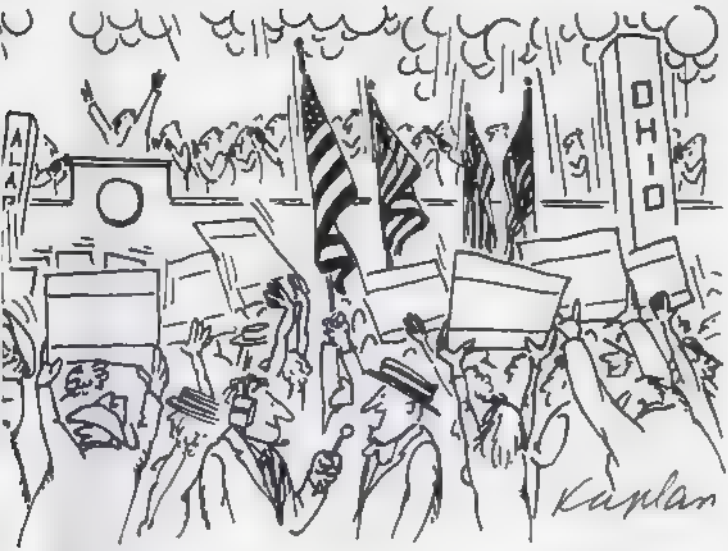
This year, the Democrats expect to be together for nearly 38 hours, a figure that a convention spokesman calls "much more realistic" than either the 60-hour "nightmare scenario" the party had envisioned earlier this year or the 20-hour "dreamland" convention the GOP held last month. Nevertheless, the Democrats may be in for some long nights if, as officials worry, a shootout erupts between the camps of President Jimmy Carter (who has already amassed 300 more delegate votes than he needs for renomination) and Massachusetts senator Edward Kennedy (whose only hope for nomination rests with wresting away delegates pledged to Mr. Carter). And if the call for "an open convention" voiced by Kennedy and, in recent weeks, other Democrats becomes a reality, the nomination of still other candidates for President could prolong Wednesday's balloting into the wee hours. Similarly, a wrangle over the Vice Presidential nominee could also lengthen Thursday's evening session.

The convention has already made room for the floor fights expected to be waged by Kennedy forces over credentials and rules (Monday) and the platform (Tuesday) by scheduling both days' sessions to begin at 10 A.M. and run uninterrupted through the afternoon (with unfinished business reserved for Thursday starting at 2 P.M.). Is that an attempt to keep the Carter-Kennedy clash out of prime time? "Our job," says an insider, "is to keep the flames as small as possible."

At press time, television coverage of the week's agenda was expected to include periodic reports on Monday and Tuesday's marathon daytime sessions and Thursday's afternoon conclave as well as gavel-to-gavel coverage of all four evening sessions. These are scheduled to end by 10 P.M., although sessions that run late would delay or preempt regular late-night programming. Additional details are in the Close-ups.

TV COVERAGE

ABC has gavel-to-gavel evening coverage (anchored by Frank Reynolds and Ted Koppel) at 6:30 P.M., but may break away at 7 each night for special editions of "20/20." Daylong hourly updates are scheduled on Monday and Tuesday, and "Good Morning



America' will have convention reports throughout the week Convention analysts include Martin F Nolan and George Will

CBS has gavel-to-gavel evening coverage anchored by Walter Cronkite, and may cover parts (or all) of the daytime sessions. Commentary Bill Moyers, Jeff Greenfield and James Kilpatrick Bob Schieffer is the anchorman for "Morning" news convention reports throughout the week

NBC also has gavel-to-gavel evening coverage anchored by David Brinkley and John Chancellor, and may cover the daytime sessions Theodore H White is the analyst In addition, 'Today" will have convention reports throughout the week

An Amazing New Diet Idea!

HOW TO BURN OFF BODY FAT, HOUR-BY-HOUR!

MEDICAL DOCTOR'S NEW DISCOVERY BURNS AWAY MORE FAT AND FLUID THAN IF YOU RAN 98 MILES PER WEEK!

Dear Friend,

My name is Don Schwerdtfeger. I am an M.D. and have been practicing medicine here in San Diego for 14 years.

I am reproducing my business card at the bottom of this page and I am writing to ask the people of America a personal favor.

If any of you will do this favor for me you will be helping me with my research and I will gladly pay you for your help.

Here is what it is all about: I am a psychiatrist and in addition to my other patients I have been helping people with alcohol and drug addictions. So far, I have treated more than 2500 various types of drug addicts.

But strangely enough, over the years, my practice has taught me that over eating is even more difficult to deal with than many hard-core drug addictions.

Some time ago I began to realize that any person who is overweight needs much more than just a diet. I now know that every overweight person needs an anti-fat weapon that is both safe and very powerful!

Finally, after years of research, I feel I have developed just such a weapon. What it consists of is a new diet product and a system that actually burns off body fat, hour-by-hour!

Believe it or not, my new diet system burns away more fat and fluid than if you ran 98 miles per week.

Many of the people who have tested my program have lost as much as 2 pounds of fat and fluid every day for the first week. Actually, many people have reported a 6 pound weight loss in just the first 48 hours! After the first week, many people continue to lose as much as 9 pounds every two weeks thereafter. Some people (who were very obese) have used my method to lose 50, 60 and even 100 pounds and more.

When you begin to use this program, you can expect to be able to measure the difference in your waistline in just 24 to 48 hours. You will probably lose more inches each week than even if you faithfully did hundreds of situps every day. You may very well lose as much as 3 to 5 inches off your waistline in the first month. If you are a woman you can lose as much as a full dress size in only 7 days.

Apparently, what happens is that my diet system allows your body to break down your excess body fat and flush it out of your system quite rapidly.

The amazing thing, of course, is the speed at which this system works. It is rather remarkable to throw off as much as 6 pounds of fat and fluid in the very first weekend. Just imagine how it must feel to drop up to 2 pounds a day and shrink your waistline up to 3 inches the first week.

My first concern when I developed this program was safety. Therefore, my anti-fat formula contains absolutely no drugs. It is made up entirely of 100% natural ingredients. I first tested it on myself and I now use it religiously every day. I have found that my program can even help people who have been hopelessly overweight all their

ABOUT DOCTOR SCHWERDTFEGER

Don Schwerdtfeger M.D. has been practicing medicine in San Diego for 14 years. During that time he has treated more than 2500 heroin addicts. However he now believes that over eating is even more difficult to deal with than many hard-core drug addictions. That's why he has developed the super fast diet system he is writing about on this page. He has also just completed a new book titled "The Secret Truth About Fat People." Dr. Schwerdtfeger is available on a limited basis for interviews concerning his new book and the contents of this advertisement and he can be contacted at the address on his business card which is reproduced below.

"...Imagine how it must feel to drop up to 2 pounds a day and shrink your waistline up to 3 inches the first weekend..."

"...The amazing thing, of course, is the speed at which this program works. It is rather remarkable to throw off as much as 6 pounds of fluid and fat in the very first weekend..."

lives, including those who need to lose 20 to 30 or 70 pounds or more.

My diet product does not necessarily produce a specific spot reduction, but if you are considerably overweight a significant overall loss of excess pounds could easily mean that you could lose:

- inches off waistline
- inches off stomach
- inches off buttocks
- inches off thighs
- inches off hips

Remember — you don't have to wait weeks for results with my system. It starts instantly! You can actually see the results in just a few days

The way you use this formula is simple. All you do is mix it with a glass of your favorite beverage and drink it every day the first thing in the morning.

Then, during the rest of the day, you eat a wide selection of tasty foods which are scientifically programmed to maintain a high level of fat burn-off

That's all there is to it. This may be the most effective fat-burning method ever developed. It is not a drug. It is not a gimmick. It is a formula that I was only able to develop after years of research and, as I said before, I use it myself

It works. And now I want to spread the word to other doctors so they can use my diet system to help all of their overweight patients. To make a long story short, what I want to do is write an article and have it published in the various medical journals as I sincerely felt this is the best way to convince other doctors of the value of my system.

But I need a lot of proof in order to get my article published and this is where you can help me. And, as I said before, I will be more than happy to repay you for your help.

So therefore, here is what I would like for you to do: if you or any member of your family is overweight I would like for you to go ahead and order a supply of my crash-loss system and test it yourself. It is sold by Millburn Products, Incorporated. As soon as you receive this fantastic diet system — start the program and see if it works for you. Frankly, this or any other diet program will not work for everyone because a very small percentage of people have unusual problems. (By the way, naturally you should check with your doctor before you use this or any other diet plan.) However, Millburn Products is so positive about this diet system that they are making the following guarantee:

IF YOU HAVE NOT LOST UP TO 6 POUNDS IN THE FIRST 48 HOURS AND UP TO 12 POUNDS IN THE FIRST WEEK, OR, IF FOR ANY REASON YOU ARE NOT 100% SATISFIED — THEN SEND BACK THE EMPTY PRODUCT CONTAINER AND THE COMPANY WILL RETURN YOUR ENTIRE PAYMENT TO YOU QUIETLY AND WITHOUT QUESTION.

The price is just $8.45 for a full 10-day supply with complete instructions. A 15-day supply is $11.70. A 20-day supply is $13.95. And finally, a 30-day supply is only $18.95. (This is a 25% discount.)

It is easy to order. First of all, don't send any money. All you have to do is pick up your phone and dial 1-800-523-7635. If you live in Pennsylvania, please call 1-800-662-6180. (These are toll free numbers and it won't cost you a penny.) When the girl answers give her your name and address and tell her how much you want to order. Then tell her the number of either your Mastercharge or Visa credit card and the expiration date. (By the way, for our records, please tell her the code number of your order is 2469.)

VITAL NOTE!

PLEASE FOLLOW THE INSTRUCTIONS BELOW AND DO NOT SEND ANY MONEY TO ORDER THIS AMAZING DIET SYSTEM.

That's all there is to it. Your order will be sent out to you quite promptly. After that, you are the judge. If you are not 100% satisfied (for any reason at all) simply send back the empty product container to Millburn Products and they will send you a complete refund with no questions asked.

However, I am pretty sure you are going to be more than satisfied. Actually, I think you're going to be amazed. In fact, I think you are going to lose your excess weight faster and easier than you ever thought possible.

Anyway, if I am right I want you to write me a letter. Don't send the letter to Millburn Products. Send it to me at the address on my business card. In the letter tell me how much weight you have lost and how you feel about my product, and how much of it you originally ordered.

In return for this favor (as soon as I get your letter) I will immediately send you another supply of my new diet product and I will send it to you absolutely free.

The amount that I will send you will be the same amount that you order now from Millburn Products. This will be my way of thanking you for helping me with my research. Also, in the long run, I honestly feel that with your help and the help of other nice people like yourself that I can do a lot to help people who have been struggling for years with a weight problem.

Sincerely,

Don Schwerdtfeger, M.D.

Don Schwerdtfeger, M.D.

P.S. By the way, if you have any questions after you start using my new diet product you can call me direct at the number on my business card which is reproduced below. Thank You.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION
ABC, CBS, NBC

Special: The 38th Democratic National Convention opens in Madison Square Garden in New York City

In what might turn out to be the week's most crucial (if not longest) session, the Democrats are scheduled to meet this morning—and all afternoon—to hear challenges to two key committee reports, credentials and rules. Specifically, it's the rule that binds delegates to the candidates to whom they were pledged that supporters of Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts—as well as Democrats opposed to Kennedy and President Jimmy Carter—are seeking to overturn.

Pomp and ceremony are reserved for tonight's session, which includes the keynote address by Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona and welcoming speeches by New York governor Hugh Carey and New York City mayor Edward Koch.

CBS is scheduled to cover the proceedings live at 10 A.M. and 7 P.M., ABC and NBC's live coverage begins at 6:30 P.M.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION
ABC, CBS, NBC

Special: The Democrats tackle their second all-day agenda, which is devoted mainly to debate over the party's platform.

Reflecting Administration views, this year's planks favor increasing the Nation's defense budget, taking 'necessary' steps to curb inflation and end the recession, and combining "compassion and self-discipline" in the funding of social programs.

None of which has sat well with Massachusetts senator Edward Kennedy, whose own delegates have filed some 25 minority planks, each to be submitted to the convention for floor votes.

A brief respite from the day's toils—a film tribute to the late senator and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey—is scheduled for 8 P.M.

ABC and NBC's live coverage is scheduled to begin at 6:30 P.M., CBS is scheduled to cover live beginning at 7 P.M.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION
ABC, CBS, NBC

Special: The Democrats choose their Presidential nominee.

At press time, President Jimmy Carter was expected to emerge once again as his party's standard bearer. Despite the diehard candidacy of Sen. Edward Kennedy, Mr. Carter was estimated to have 1982 delegate votes (compared with Kennedy's 1235), giving the President comfortably more than the 1666 needed for renomination.

That arithmetic has not discouraged advocates of an open convention from circulating the names of other potential nominees, including Secretary of State Edmund Muskie, Washington senator Henry Jackson and even Vice President Walter Mondale.

Nominating speeches are scheduled to begin at 7:30 P.M., with the balloting itself expected to get underway at 9 P.M. ABC and NBC are scheduled to begin live coverage at 8.30 P.M.; CBS's live coverage is slated to start at 7 P.M.

anyway. Both the U.S. Department of Energy's Office of Conservation and Solar Energy and a citizens group called the Solar Lobby have been quietly working since last October to educate such TV producers as Garry Marshall (Happy Days, Laverne & Shirley, Mork & Mindy), Norman Lear (Archie Bunker's Place, One Day at a Time) and Gene Reynolds (Lou Grant) about the energy situation.

Both Lear and Marshall have enthusiastically taken up the cause. "We are not saying buy this or do that," says Marshall. "It's subliminal." An episode of Archie Bunker's Place last season, for example, included a 10-minute segment about setting thermostats at 68 degrees. This season Garry Marshall plans to emphasize how Mork's planet, Ork, uses solar energy. On Happy Days, Fonzie may show that his room has a "solar side" by bringing a girl friend into what he calls "a warm spot." Says Marshall, "I told these people we gotta tie energy up with sex so the viewers will listen."

A company owned by a 12-year-old child is going to produce a three-hour movie called "Evita, First Lady," about the wife of Argentinian dictator Juan Peron, for NBC. The child is Gary Coleman, star of NBC's series Diff'rent Strokes. Coleman will not actually produce the film or star in it. But his production firm, Zephyr Productions, was given the project by NBC to satisfy a commitment made by the network in exchange for Coleman's exclusive services. Under the deal, Coleman's company has already produced two TV-movies for NBC starring the pint-sized actor: last year's "The Kid from Left Field" and this year's "Scout's Honor." But the Peron project has TV-industry insiders scratching their heads. Says one astonished executive at a rival network, "There isn't even any evidence that Gary Coleman knows where Argentina is." —Sally Bedell

ABC, CBS, NBC

Special: The Convention's final session from New York's Madison Square Garden

The Rules Report (debate over which began on Monday) is scheduled to conclude this afternoon with discussions and floor votes on the remaining minority reports yet to be heard.

Nominating and balloting for the Vice Presidential candidate at tonight's session should be a ceremonial affair, since (at press time) the only contender for the office was the man who already occupies it—Minnesota's Walter Mondale.

Acceptance speeches by the Presidential and Vice Presidential nominees will likely take dead aim on their GOP rivals, Ronald Reagan and George Bush.

ABC and NBC are scheduled to begin their live coverage at 6.30 P.M.; CBS is scheduled to start coverage at 7 P.M.

GET THE BENEFIT OF ARMY TRAINING PLUS THE BENEFIT OF STAYING HOME.

You don't have to move away and join the Army to get Army Training. Just join your local Army Reserve unit part-time.

ARMY TRAINING.

First, you'll get seven weeks of Initial Entry Training to master soldiering.

Next, you're off to a top-notch Army school for two to four months. Here you'll learn a valuable job skill like Surveying, Communications. Or, depending on your qualifications and your unit's needs, one of the other 300-plus career specialties.

If it's more convenient, split your training over two consecutive summers. Or, if you enlist in Combat Arms, you attend only a 12 to 14 week program called "One-Station Unit Training."

ARMY PAY.

Make over $448 a month while away for training. You'll do O.K. back home, too. For the 16 hours a month you serve and two weeks Annual Training, you can make almost $1,000.

PART-TIME DUTY.

Best of all, the Army Reserve gives you a chance to serve your country, your community and yourself, right where you live.

A $1,500 BONUS.

Many units still offer a $1,500 enlistment bonus. Or up to $2,000 toward college.

And you don't have to wait for graduation to join. If you're 17, you can now join any time during your last three years in high school.

The Convention Coverage Game

How TV reporters and politicians maneuver behind the scenes to shape what you see at party conventions

By Sally Bedell

The year was 1956, and Democratic National Committee chairman Paul Butler was fuming. His colleagues had prepared a 28-minute propaganda film to show during their party's national convention in Chicago, and all three networks had been furnished copies so that they could present it to home audiences as well. But when the first frame flashed on the giant screen at the convention hall, CBS cut away for live interviews instead. Afterward, Butler walked to the podium and castigated the network publicly for the blackout. The delegates responded by shouting, "Throw them out!" and shaking their fists at the CBS cameras

It is unlikely that viewers of this week's Democratic National Convention will witness such a glaring rift between the politicians and the networks. After 1956 the politicians learned their lesson. They discovered that they needed to work with the television folks, not against them. The relationship between the politicians and the networks at convention time has settled into a kind of conditioned symbiosis in which mutual manipulation is a fact of life. Neither side dares violate the basic ground rules, but each nevertheless tries to outmaneuver the other in myriad little ways. Behind all the ballyhoo and balloons on TV screens, an elaborate game of cat and mouse is being played that viewers never see. It is a game that involves lots of strategy, some luck and a touch of farce.

The politicians regard a convention as a gift of free air time to show viewers how dedicated, purposeful and competent they are. To convey that message, every activity during their four-day event is carefully staged. Says William Carruthers, former TV adviser to Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, "There is no reason that a convention should be laid out for prime time any differently than an entertainment special. You need a well-developed format and you have to consider the personalities and events to determine what you do each night." In 1972 Carruthers spent six months planning a script for the Republican convention that was so meticulously detailed it included pauses for applause and instructions for cheering. Football hero Bart Starr, who appeared on the podium during the opening ceremony, was even directed to "nod" to the color guard as it passed by.

While the politicians don't give the networks every detail of their plans, they provide them far more advance information than any other journalists covering the event ever receive. The two sides sit down each morning to exchange their agendas, and as the proceedings unfold, the national committee's TV consultants feed minute-by-minute bulletins through a hot line connected to the network control rooms "The politicians make a big effort to keep everyone busy," says one former Presidential press secretary. "Their assumption is that idle hands do the devil's work. Reporters are always looking for something newsworthy, and the politicians are afraid that what they find will harm the party."

The easiest way to keep the TV cameras engaged is with noisy floor demonstrations and slick films that convention planners generally schedule during lulls in the official proceedings. The networks accept both as necessary evils. Says David Buksbaum, senior producer of CBS's 1980 campaign coverage, "The film is part of the convention. I think the American people have a right to see it, even if it is a commercial. The whole week is a commercial."

A less obvious technique for keeping TV producers and correspondents hopping is by controlling access to the political luminaries—White House advisers, Cabinet members and other prominent party officials. The networks routinely submit long lists of names for possible interviews, and the political strategists try to comply when it suits their purposes. Secretary of State Edmund Muskie, for example, might be made available during a foreign-policy debate on the floor. Which network superstar questions Muskie first is anybody's guess. The pols often draw straws to determine the interviewing order, but favoritism and quid pro quos occur as well. NBC correspondent Tom Brokaw still bristles when he recalls → the moment that he, CBS's Mike Wallace and ABC's Frank Reynolds arrived simultaneously to catch Ronald Reagan at the 1976 convention. Reagan's press secretary, James Lake, assigned the initial interview to Reynolds, explaining, "I owe this one to ABC."

Precious little information or insight emerges from such staged interrogations. Says longtime Democratic operative Frank Mankiewicz: "In 1976 both Ford and Carter understood that if they were interviewed on the run, they would get one and a half minutes whether they spoke seriously or not. So they talked about how happy they were to be there." Sophistication about the limits of television extends far beyond the men at the top of the ticket. Television consultants coach convention speakers—carefully chosen for their symbolic value—on what to wear, how to talk and where to look when they mount the podium. It is a far different situation from 1948, when television first transmitted the conventions to nine East Coast cities, and Harry Truman nearly blinded viewers by appearing on the platform wearing a white suit and white shirt. "There is only one rule for politicians at conventions today," says former Reagan strategist John Sears. "When you are out there, look good."

Television advisers also orchestrate the comings and goings of political celebrities around the convention hall. During most of the convention, the big-name politicians sit comfortably in hotel suites or secluded lounges at the convention center, where they watch the surrounding show on television. When they do make an appearance in the hall, it is carefully timed for peak-viewing hours. Says the Republicans' William Carruthers, "It isn't appropriate in terms of generating viewer interest to have the President and First Lady arrive at the same time. Two entrances are always better than one."

Such arrivals invariably prompt a stampede of network correspondents to the VIP seating section, where they jostle to snatch a few words for the folks at home. These earnest inquisitors are members of the network floor teams the cream of the news departments. This year their ranks include veteran correspondents Tom Pettit, Tom Brokaw and Garrick Utley of NBC; CBS's Dan Rather, Lesley Stahl, Phil Jones, Ed Bradley, Morton Dean, Harry Reasoner and Bob Schieffer; and ABC's Sam Donaldson and Sander Vanocur. There is also a handful of network comers—Chris Wallace of NBC, Lynn Sherr and Max Robinson of ABC and Susan Spencer of CBS.

The floor team forms the vanguard of the competition among the network news divisions. Says Ron Nessen, a former NBC correspondent and press secretary to Gerald Ford, "Prestige, money and ratings are at stake for the networks. The network that wins the convention will win the campaign and Election Night, and through the next four years will be the news champ." The floor correspondents feed on personal rivalry as well. They constantly vie with their colleagues for air time, baying at the anchor booth like a pack of frustrated bloodhounds. Says one CBS floor correspondent, "We're concerned about Walter [Cronkite] this year. It's his last convention and he is going to want as much time on camera as possible."

The most blatant competition that the knowledgeable can detect is the mad scrambling to be first with interviews. The appearance of Jimmy Carter's mother, Miss Lillian, for a cozy chat with Walter Cronkite in 1976, for example, was preceded by an unseemly bidding war among correspondents from the three networks. A quick-witted Dan Rather won by promising an instant audience with the Big One in the CBS anchor booth where, Rather promised, "everyone can see her."

ing to project an aura of good feelings and unity, the TV correspondents have a different goal for their prime-time show. Harmony equals dullness, so they look for sparks of controversy that can ignite viewer interest. At CBS and ABC, members of the floor teams conduct their search within quadrants or zones. Their NBC counterparts are permitted to roam wherever they like. "I feel a little like a caged animal," says Dan Rather of CBS. "I try to keep circling and circling. If I keep myself in view for people who know something, they will come to me with information."

In 1976 Rather and his cohorts found themselves overwhelmed by information hucksters. Besides the political operatives for the Presidential candidates, there were hordes of press secretaries offering their governors and senators, as well as agents representing groups such as expatriate Americans and the handicapped. Recalls NBC's Brokaw, "I kept getting calls from minions in the Reagan camp saying that so-and-so in the Mississippi delegation is ready to break from Ford. But I had a good operative in the Ford organization that I would call to check it out." The delegation ended up split between Ford and Reagan. The networks draw on other resources to avoid drowning in the flood tide of rumors. They each have "prompt books," massive tomes bursting with information about the party, the candidates and the delegations that include analyses of issues and insights into factional rivalries. They also rely on special reporters from local stations assigned to key delegations. "The rumors build up with the anchorman reporting that something might be happening," explains one seasoned floor reporter. "Then you go out and find someone to say it isn't true. You think you have filled a public service by knocking down a rumor, but you have really filled about three minutes of air time."

Sometimes the campaign strategists will even generate misinformation to advance their cause. During the Democratic convention in 1972 the McGovern camp persuaded the networks to conclude incorrectly that a crucial vote on a credentials challenge in the South Carolina delegation was a victory for Hubert Humphrey. Because of some quirky convention rules, a narrow win over Humphrey on the challenge could have endangered the hold of the McGovern forces on other delegations. So they instructed their delegates to vote with Humphrey. Recalls Frank Mankiewicz, who was McGovern's political director at the time, "We drifted onto the floor and found the network correspondents. They were eager to talk, and we were eager to tell them a story, but we never told them about our strategy."

The networks know that the politicians are keeping secrets and they try all sorts of schemes to ferret out the facts. An overzealous NBC producer overstepped her bounds in 1968, however, by concealing a microphone behind a curtain during a Democratic platform meeting. She was caught, and NBC publicly apologized. Mike Wallace chose a better method in 1976 when he offered the Mississippi delegation the CBS correspondents' trailer so they could conduct a secret caucus off the convention floor. The delegates scarcely noticed three young boys sitting in the back of the trailer, listening intently to their every word. They were the sons of CBS correspondents Roger Mudd and Bill Moyers and producer Perry Wolff, planted in the trailer by Wallace. After the caucus ended, Wallace put the three boys on camera to tell what they had heard.

Dan Rather tried to provoke a story in the same delegation by suggesting to Ford campaign chairman Rogers Morton that he publicly confront the Mississippi people on the convention floor. Some Ford staffers in a "sky booth" spotted Rather escorting Morton toward the → e.p.t.—the same type of test used in many hospitals and labs—has been used by more than 2 million women at home.

e.p.t. is highly accurate. E.P.T. is the same type of test used in millions of laboratory tests and in thousands of hospitals in the United States and all over the world. No other in-home pregnancy test is more accurate than E.P.T.

In fact, the high accuracy rate of E.P.T. has been clinically confirmed by doctors. All you need to do is follow the simple directions. When you do, E.P.T. is as accurate as similar hospital and laboratory tests.

e.p.t. is easy, fast and private. E.P.T. is a simple test using morning urine. As early as nine days after you've missed an expected period, E.P.T. can detect the pregnancy hormone, HCG, in your morning urine. If, in two hours, E.P.T. says you're not pregnant, your period should begin soon.

If E.P.T. indicates you are pregnant, you should, of course, consult your physician. If a week goes by and your period has not begun, you should take a second E.P.T. If, once again, E.P.T. indicates that you are not pregnant, consult your physician.

e.p.t. is the original in-home early pregnancy test. It has been used by more than two million women at home.

Mississippi crowd and they called one of their leaders on the floor. Anxious to keep the peace between the delegation and the Ford camp, one of them hustled over to spirit Morton away, explaining to Rather that the chairman had urgent business elsewhere.

As a rule, the delegates are dying to be seen on television. Few are quite so blatant as the man who tried to catch David Brinkley's eye in 1956 by wearing a shirt adorned with neon tubing. Every time he saw a TV camera pointed his way he pressed a button in his pocket and his shirt lit up, spelling out the name of his candidate, Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia. But most convention participants take their television appearances seriously. In 1968 one delegate formerly pledged to Reagan popped up suddenly in the Nixon camp. When a Reagan operative asked him why he had switched, he said, "Because I told CBS I was going to."

As the convention coverage begins each night, the three networks spend at least a half hour setting the scene. Says Mike Wallace, "We try to grab the audience with the most interesting characters we can possibly find on the floor or an exclusive story about how it is going. From then on, it's catch as catch can." The correspondents try to pursue themes such as the status of women in politics or the effect of inflation on blue-collar voters. But the tedium of the event often overtakes them. In 1956 an NBC reporter was so desperate to fill time at the Republican convention that he brought on a Hawaiian delegate to demonstrate the hula. Nowadays, reporters are more liable to slide into what one political pro calls "let's pretend journalism." He explains, "When nothing is going on, everyone runs around posing questions to people who are in no position to give an answer. They are saying, in effect, 'Let's pretend your answer means something'."

The reporters also resort to "head-hunting"—casting about for celebrities to interview. The resulting exchanges can be downright silly. In 1976 Lesley Stahl beat her rivals to Jimmy Carter's 8-year-old daughter Amy and asked, "Do you have any advice for the young people of America?" "No," muttered Amy. "Back to you, Walter," said Stahl. Cassie Mackin, then of NBC, also failed to elicit anything more than monosyllables. But ABC's Sam Donaldson, a familiar face from the Carter campaign trail, propped Amy on his knee and said, "Your lemonade was fine but you didn't put any mayonnaise on your sandwich." Replied Amy, "I did too!" Exclaimed Donaldson later, "All Cassie and Lesley got out of her was 'yes' or 'no.' I got three words. So my secret was mayonnaise."

In the heat of the moment, such triumphs loom large. Explains Wallace, "You are so caught up in the process that everything seems important, whether it is manufactured or genuine." Adds another convention veteran, "What does it matter whether I do an interview at 9:12 and the other guy does it at 9:15? Is there a beat there? I don't think so. But will it mean something in my paycheck at the next contract negotiation? Yes." Once the event has ended, correspondents have a difficult time identifying their accomplishments. "You ask me about the convention," continues the veteran, "I have memories of nothing."

Nevertheless, the floor troopers will willingly throw themselves into the game yet again this week. Although the certainty of Jimmy Carter's renomination will draw all suspense from the proceedings, the viewer can find plenty of questions to keep him riveted to the political show of shows. Will Rather beat Brokaw? Will Amy offer some advice at last? Will Miss Lillian continue her chat with Walter? The answers could provide the best drama a convention can offer. (END)

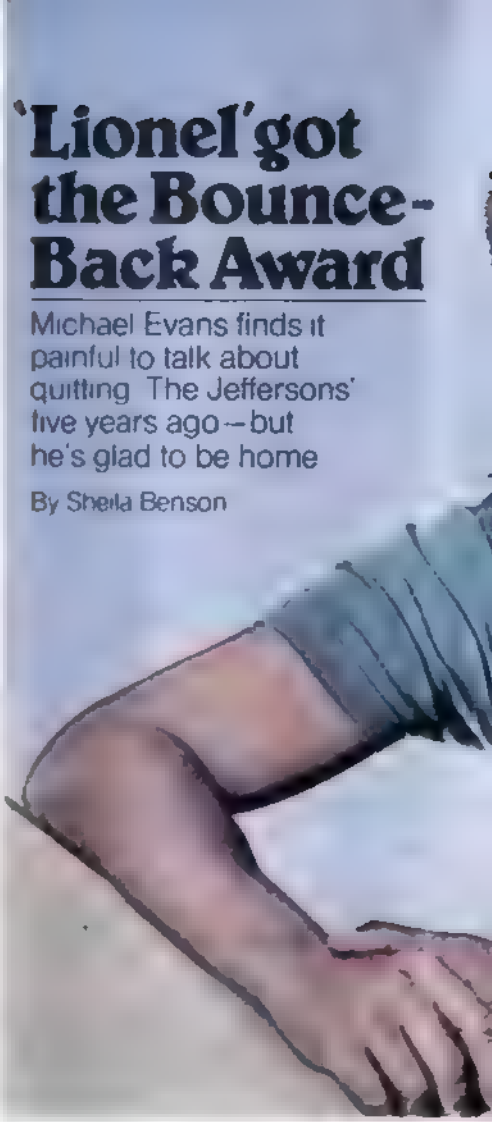
'Lionel' got the Bounce-Back Award

Michael Evans finds it painful to talk about quitting The Jeffersons' five years ago—but he's glad to be home

By Sheila Benson



The prodigal son is nothing new to television. There was prodigal Pernell Roberts and prodigal Dennis Weaver; there were even prodigal teams like Martin Landau and Barbara Bain and a prodigal daughter or so like Farrah Fawcett. All of them left their sheltering television families, convinced they were destined for greater things, but also, perhaps, with the wistful hope that the home folks would keep the door unlocked and a light in the window.

What makes the story of The Jeffersons' effervescent prodigal son Michael Evans unique in this group is that, after four years of wandering, he is back, not only in the bosom of his family, but also in the heart of Norman Lear, which is the anatomy that counts in television.

Evans' fall from grace took place in 1975. His rise had begun in 1970 when, with very little theatrical experience, he landed the plum role of the student son of the Jeffersons, Archie Bunker's own blockbusters. On the night in January that Lionel's first segment of All in the Family was broadcast, director John Rich took Evans aside.

"It was just like one of those '40s movies," Evans remembers. "He talked to me like I was the new kid, which I was. 'Just get ready,' Rich said. 'The world is going to be different from tonight on. Your friends are going to be different: some who hated your guts are going to be nice; people who loved you are going to hate you. And the thing that's going to make you craziest is that everyone is going to tell you you changed.'

"That little pep talk was wonderful," Evans says. "It didn't nearly prepare me for what was to come, but it got me at least watching—thinking, oh-oh, something's coming, instead of having it come at me like a wave."

The next wave was the big one in 1975, when the Jeffersons moved to a show of their own and the characters played by Isabel Sanford, Sherman Hemsley and Mike Evans changed locations to a Manhattan highrise. Norman Lear, who has since moved to a lofty overview of the production he created, was still closely connected with the show in 1975. He remembers just what happened after The Jeffersons' first 13 shows

"When The Jeffersons hit, it was a big success. It hit very fast and very hard. Even though he had been on All in the Family, this was Mike's (and Isabel's and Sherman's) own show: it was a lot of success to take very quickly. Mike began to have a difficult time with himself. He complained about the amount of material written for him, about how strong his character was and wasn't. I saw a young man who was having difficulty with his own success—not a new phenomenon.

"Part of my memory is that he was being given poor advice. He was steered incorrectly to assume he was much more important than he was on the show, and to make demands that were not about to be acceded to. There must have been somebody telling him we couldn't do without him.

"Mike Evans is not a bad person, not then and not now," Lear continues. "He's a good man and a sweet man and a kind man and I really care a lot about Mike, but at that time he was having troubles with himself and they were being visited on the creative group surrounding him."

It came to a head at a wrap party ending the first 13 weeks. "Mike asked me casually but intently," Lear remembers, "how he could get off the show." Lear thinks Evans felt sure the question would be a shocker. But Lear called his bluff.

"You could get off the show by just telling me you wished to," Lear said evenly.

"That simple?"

"Yes. Just tell me you want off and see how quickly it happens."

"I want off."

"I said, 'You're off'," Lear recalls, "and I shook his hand." Evans left the show, but was not sorely missed. The Jeffersons continued to be successful.

Even today the subject is as painful as a compound fracture for Evans. He will not talk about the reasons that led to his suicidal question. He remembers some of the wildness that came afterward, the scheme to rent a helicopter and fly over a parade, dropping dollar bills as "a power play" to call attention to himself and his situation. ("My publicity people said, 'Jerk! Keep your money!' ") Or the unrealized brainstorm of renting a U-Haul, mixing cement as he drove it and arriving at Grauman's Chinese with a freshly made set of footprints, as another publicity-grabber. He was desperate for recognition.

Maybe it stemmed from his days as a fat adolescent. Not chubby, not plump. A 5-foot-tall 15-year-old who weighs 180 pounds knows exactly what the right word is. Then, suddenly, he grew 6 inches and lost 40 pounds in → four months. "I felt like I was in a new body," he says. But the memory of the old one hadn't faded.

Evans understands how his behavior must have looked after he left The Jeffersons. "I was getting crazy. Even somebody who doesn't know why he is sick knows he is sick. So I don't say I was committable—I just knew I was very uncomfortable and I needed to be doing something else. So I did it."

Evans headed for Morongo Valley, Cal., a town in the desert, halfway between Palm Springs and Big Bear City. There he did a bit of everything: raised dogs; bought houses, remodeled them and resold them; ran a mail-order merchandising business; even built his own tractor from a kit. The mail-order business was for the "special lady" who trekked out to the desert with Evans.

Virtually the only acting Evans did during the next four years was 13 weeks on a Danny Thomas comedy series, The Practice, where he played a young medical student. Otherwise, he stayed out in the desert.

There was a problem with the staunch lady who was with him there, but it didn't surface until the end of their third year. "We had some disagreements and you know how you say, Well, if you don't like it, get out of here'? She did." From Evans comes a rueful chuckle. "So that was a surprise. And as wonderful as that place out there could be for two people, for one person it was a drag. It was solitude city. You say: Phone—ring. TV—oh yeah. Lizard runs across the path, oh hey, there's half a day, lookin' at him. So in that last year I was making trips to L.A. more and more often."

He was also beginning to work with super-8 equipment, stubbornly determined to learn to make his own films—direct, edit, photograph them—then bombard Chs. 5, 9 and 13 in Los Angeles for some afternoon slots.

At this point, fate took Mike Evans' hand a second time. He'd gotten his first break on a fluke when the man he was hitchhiking with turned out to be a talent agent. Now, as he went up the Pacific Coast Highway, super 8 in hand to photograph a sunset, he ran smack-dab into Sherman Hemsley, whom he hadn't seen in several years.

As Hemsley remembers it, the two, who had always been good friends had a warm reunion. "I said, 'Hey, Mike, wouldn't it be great if you were back in the series again?' He said it would never happen. 'Well,' I said, 'we could give it a try.' So we called the producers and everybody seemed to go along with it, and that's all there was to it."

It isn't all there was. Hemsley was the intermediary, but he dislikes the notion that he will get credit for something nice he's done. He tries to reinforce his passive role. "You know, everything is meant to be the way it is. It's as though it happened through me, but not in person. It was like a channel, you know?" The antithesis of George Jefferson, Hemsley is apparently what he is rumored to be—an almost paralytically shy and modest person

And so it was done. Evans had no stomach for facing a new cadre of executives "with my tail between my legs," but he was assured it wouldn't be like that. He talked for almost an hour with the show's current executive producers, Jay Moriarty and Mike Milligan, who saw not only a more mature man, but the chance, in Moriarty's words, "for the show to have a new direction with Lionel back. We have a theme each season. This time Lionel and Jenny could have a baby; the network loves babies."

About this crucial moment, Lear says: "If there's anything this company understands, it's that people grow, just like characters grow; in life they don't stand still. And that's why, when Mike → said he was ready to come back, we were happy to have him."

The prodigal had indeed returned. At Christmas time, among the joke awards at a cast party (the Saran Wrap to Isabel Sanford, famous for taking leftover catered food home; the Playskool clock to Sherman, not always the earliest actor to arrive at rehearsals), Evans got a wooden paddle board and ball: The Bounce-Back Award.

What have the five years brought? If the old Evans was happy-go-lucky, even brash, the new one is painfully careful not to say anything that could offend. Before telling an enormously flattering story about Danny Thomas, he precedes it with, "I hope I don't offend anyone, especially Danny Thomas, because I revere the man." As he tells a terribly funny story, he self-censors a product name. He will only play "a good guy." Why shouldn't John Wayne be a role model?

"I don't think of myself as an actor. I don't want to broaden my horizons or stretch myself. I want to do something positive, get paid and go home." Nor does he want to be around any non-positive attitudes—his rule of thumb for bad news is: "Can I do something to help or change what you're telling me about? If not, don't tell me. I haven't had a whole lot of bad news in my life, but I've had enough. I want to have a good time all the time."

During the first Jeffersons era, Evans thinks his attitude was that work "was fun I got paid for. This time I approach it as a business. There was a time when I lived in the studio and my life at home was a bore. Now that's changed."

His life at home has changed too. There is very much a steady lady now. From Ethiopia, "which is an adventure in itself," Evans says, round-eyed. They met "at one of my favorite places in life, the bank," where she was a supervisor. At home, before the Communist takeover of her country, "she was raised like a virtual princess, or at least a brat." During the Communist takeover she came over on a student visa. Because some of her family is still there, she is another one of the things he doesn't want to talk about in detail. During the hiatus before the fall season, Evans and his lady are working hard putting together a fast-service grocery they have just acquired.

Four years in the desert changed other things for Evans: from a man who didn't believe in weapons more exotic than a kitchen carving knife, he has become a National Rifle Association member. His lady's horror stories of the takeover of her country have strengthened his belief that having a gun and knowing how to use it might not be completely useless information. "I carry my NRA card, but I wouldn't shoot a deer or anything," he says.

Evans is 30 now. In its sixth year, The Jeffersons has spirated upward on the ratings charts. To a publicity person who has been with the show since its first 13 weeks, Mike is "a man born under a lucky star, a sweet and lovable person. And with the show in the Top 10, he may make a great deal of money."

It will, you may be assured, be well looked after. Evans is scrupulously careful to have something coming in "that's constant and dependable. The point is, the struggle is never over. The wolves won't get in—they may get a toe of mine, but they ain't gettin' in the house," he says firmly.

Norman Lear has the final word on the subject. "Mike Evans is a darling man and I'm thrilled that he found himself and he's working again, exercising his vital abilities. He's a wonderful natural talent. People like him; they always did. When he was being the most difficult, it wasn't that we didn't like him personally. But all's well that ends well. It's an upbeat ending, and I'm happy about that." END

ACCESS—

Everyone—from zany hams to community activists—can become a cable-TV star

By Dwight Whitney

"There is an increasing need for a channel for community expression and we are taking steps to serve that need. [It] . . . will offer a practical opportunity to participate in community dialogue through a mass medium. . . ."

—The FCC in 1972

The building is squat, unprepossessing, brick, in a low-glamour area of Santa Monica, Cal. It's the home of Theta Cable, third largest metropolitan cable system in the Nation. The studio is bigger than a broom closet, but not by much.

If the student camera operators backed up any farther with their ancient black-and-white equipment, their tail bones would be resting against the studio wall.

These are typical working conditions for public-access television: that system by which the FCC-decreed right of the individual to perform on the public air is implemented. For most people, if they are aware of it at all, public access has come to be synonymous with no talent, a kind of visual vanity press, the preserve of amateurs and video freaks.

That was before Paul Ryan. Ryan may be the only bona-fide star yet to be developed by public-access television. He, too, occupied the Theta "broom closet" for two and a half long years before The Paul Ryan Show graduated to a somewhat more spacious and better-equipped color studio across the hall. Even so, he still pays $250 an hour for the privilege.

Indeed, Ryan has brought a new kind of prestige to this unwanted (by the cable operators) stepchild of cable. Although he offers them minimal viewer exposure, he is hip-deep in celebrities clamoring to be interviewed on The Paul Ryan Show. Gore Vidal, every world-weary inch of him, has been on the show. So have, to name a few, Robin Williams, Henry Fonda, Sophia Loren, John Ritter, Sally Kellerman, Lee Strasberg, Michael Caine, Rex Reed, Peter Ustinov and Jack Lemmon.

Here comes Dyan Cannon now. She settles in the improvised "green room," complete with petit fours on a silver tray. With her are her secretary, her secretary's mother, her press agent and her personal manager who is explaining why his client, who is very "selective," has chosen to appear on The Paul Ryan Show.

OR EXCESS?

"This show has a small circulation but—well, the right people are watching," he says matter-of-factly.

Theta Cable is unique in this respect. Hooked into its cable system are the area's most influential producers and directors. By virtue of this fact and a natural gift for talking, Ryan has become a star of sorts.

Some "star." He is unsalaried. He is obliged to maintain his own 14-man production staff. To help pay the rent, he teaches a comedy workshop. Only recently has he been picked up by the Satellite Program Network, whose promoters claim to put his program within reach of five million viewers. He is still unsalaried. Why? He hopes the exposure will turn him into a star without quotation marks.

"Oh, it's a damn good show," says Theta general manager Tom Kanarian. "But it has nothing to do with us. We merely act as a carrier, as we do with all of our public access."

Kanarian is nothing if not in character. If you told the average cable man 30 years ago that he would be anything more than a mechanic, he would have called you crazy. He was simply a fellow who collected a fee for boosting a weak signal over an obstruction, such as a mountain range, and piping it into your house. So much did he collect that everybody wanted to get into the business. By 1970, there were nearly 2500 cable systems using the public air to make a private profit without making any contribution themselves.

In March 1971, the FCC, under chairman Dean Burch, met to consider the inequity of the situation. Teleprompter's Irving Kahn, then one of the most influential men in cable, rose to tell the commissioners that the operators had "an absolute obligation to provide access channels to all individuals and groups with a reason to address their fellow citizens."

The commissioners were impressed. The cable operator, in return for the privilege of using the air, must provide a public forum for "the enrichment of → the lives of people." It has become known as public access.

The movement gained further impetus from the development of light, inexpensive Japanese video equipment called port-a-pac. For a small investment, any street kid could become his own De Mille. The so-called video freaks taped everything in sight. Where did they put their output? Where else but on public access?

In Manhattan, for example, there soon was not just one public-access channel, but four. Though the flow of material was overwhelming, the quality never seemed to justify Kahn's hopes. It "enriched" all right, but in a mostly bizarre kind of way. Indeed, it never really progressed beyond that point. Even today the most talked-about "stars" of public access in New York are a hippie-type named Coca Crystal, who rolls suspicious-looking cigarettes while discussing sex and politics; and a man calling himself Ugly George, whose Hour of Truth, Sex and Violence consists of video-taped conversations with—or propositions to—women on the street.

Basically engineers and not programmers, most cable operators in the beginning were sorely tried to produce any local programming more complicated than a three-minute weather scan. They became experts in evasion. Many simply turned a channel or two over to a state university to utilize in any way it pleased through its communications and/or film departments. Ironically, some of these have covered themselves with glory, such as Time Inc.'s American Television and Communication Corp.'s Champaign-Urbana Cablevision, a model operation linked to the University of Illinois.

Despite everything, there are some genuinely innovative things happening. There are systems that encourage dialogue. At Berks Cable in Reading, Pa., for instance, Mr. Ordinary Citizen is invited to face down a local pol on a split screen. "The fellow we're looking for is willing to say, 'This guy doesn't deserve to be elected,' and tell him why," says programming director Bruce Shaak. "Our big thing is live interaction between factions."

Two of the sharpest systems, Cape Cod Cablevision (Barnstable, Mass.) and Viacom Cablevision of San Rafael (Cal.), offer air time to a variety of local groups. If the Cape Cod Writers Conference wants to do a book show, or a group of young people a Cape version of Saturday Night Live, they have found themselves a forum. But they must take a five-week workshop training course first.

Viacom Cablevision has long been a leader in developing innovative, locally originated cable programming. It was former director of community programming Patty Trosclair who believed that with the privilege of using public access comes an equal measure of responsibility. She would allow anyone to produce a show, but they had to do the work themselves. If they didn't know how, Trosclair would show them. The most recent community programming director, Peter Rafalow, has continued Trosclair's system, and in 1980 Viacom received four National Cable Television Association ACE awards for locally originated community programs.

In Santa Barbara, Cal., Ira Opper, Cable 2's imaginative programming director, put a couple of public-access comics to work doing an irreverent running commentary on the heretofore sacrosanct Fiesta Day Parade. The city fathers, who are also the cable-franchise holders, were not amused. Still, it showed that cable coverage does not have to be inept, unoriginal or dull.

"This whole business is going crazy, about to explode," thinks Opper. "This includes access, if it's handled right."

The average cable operator is not so sure. Right now cable is poised, the operators say, to "take off" in other directions. Pay-television is already → operating profitably on most major cable systems. The so-called superstations, beamed by satellite from anywhere in the country, will shortly inundate us with material. And huge sports networks threaten to turn our living rooms into one vast stadium.

In the face of all this glamorous and profitable activity, where does that leave public access? "Nowhere," says Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, whose proposed comprehensive rewrite (now defunct) of the outmoded Communications Act of 1934 did not even mention public access. "It's a matter that must be decided at the local level."

Public access received a further blow in April 1979, when the Supreme Court, in reviewing the Midwest Video case, denied the FCC's right to require licensees to provide access. The agency had exceeded its authority, the Court ruled. Even though the decision's effect will not be immediate—public access is written into almost all franchises granted cable companies by local governments—many think it spells the ultimate end to Irving Kahn's "absolute obligation" to provide a means of community expression

Paul Ryan interviewing actress Constance Towers

Still, there are those who keep the faith. "We must [support public access] because it's our responsibility," insists Gene Linder, director of programming and production of the 120-system ATC "It's a costly proposition but we'll just have to bite the bullet. I know the power of community good will."

It is a clear, nearly smogless day in Santa Monica. Paul Ryan's faithful staff, led by his co-producer, David Sarro, have spent an hour setting up the Green Room and stocking it with petit fours on a silver tray. It is a nicety "the stars appreciate." He also supplies guests with Mercedes limos. It tends to make them remember him.

For a star, perhaps the only star, of public access, he seems singularly removed from its larger considerations. He has, he says, no strong feelings about access as an instrument of social interaction. It is more like a means to an end.

He has been at it for three years now. (His first show was with an old pal, comedian Harvey Lembeck.) Despite his 24-carat reputation in Bel Air, only recently has anyone stepped forward offering to put him in the big time. Ryan is being considered as a talk-show host by Ted Turner's satellite cable-TV service. NBC has been considering him as a possible guest host for Tom Snyder on Tomorrow, and producer Chris Bearde made Ryan co-host for a pilot called "Top Ten," which ran in July as an NBC special.

Still, there is an apparent shyness on the part of the networks to go all-out for Ryan. "The kid's terrific," Bearde says. "What we are bucking here is abject terminal fear of anything new or fresh. With talk shows everything rides on a single personality."

Ryan is undaunted. "I think it will happen, I know it will happen," he says earnestly. "It can't possibly not happen; I love doing it too much."

Meantime, is he happy being the brightest adornment in the crown of public access? He smiles his finest empire-building smile. "Not really, but sure. Why not?" END

INTRODUCING DIETAC.™

IT GIVES YOUR DIET A FIGHTING CHANCE.

Over 40 million Americans went on a diet last year. The problem was they usually didn't stay on it.

Well now the makers of Contac® are introducing Dietac, a new line of diet aids—timed-release capsules, pre-meal drops and tablets—that help you control your appetite, so you can stick to your diet.

Clinically proven safe and effective.

The key ingredient in new Dietac is an appetite suppressant called phenylpropanolamine. This ingredient has been found safe and effective in years of testing, and has received the endorsement of a U.S. Government Advisory Review Panel.

12-hour timed-release capsule.

No one knows more about timed-release capsules than we, the makers of Contac. Now we've put this experience into the development of new 12-hour Dietac.

One Dietac capsule after breakfast helps you control your appetite all day. And makes it easier for you to really stick to your diet.

Pre-meal drops or tablets.

Five Dietac drops in a hot or cold beverage, or one Dietac tablet, half an hour before a meal, effectively helps curb your appetite. You feel less hungry at mealtime, so you can eat less. And Dietac drops or tablets are caffeine-free.

Dietac could help you change your eating habits.

With the help of Dietac, you can develop better eating habits. Like eating lighter. And eating smarter. Then, once you've lost those extra pounds, your new eating habits can help you stay at your desired weight.
